REMAINS OF MRS. DAVIS

INTERRED AT RICHMOND

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—The body of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, who died Tuesday night in New York, arrived here this morning and was met by a military and Confederate Veteran escort and taken to St. Paul's Episcopal church, where the services will begin at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The interment will be in the famous Hollywood cemetery, the grave being next to that of President Davis. The funeral procession will be an imposing one, made up largely of military and Confederate organizations.

A detail of veterans will guard the body at the church. In accordance with Mrs. Davis' expressed wishes, the remains will not lie in state.

New York, Oct. 18.—A simple and brief funeral service was held today for the late Mrs. Jefferson Davis at the Hotel Majestic. Rev. N. A. Seagle, of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, officiating. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. George S. Baker, chaplain of the Southern Society, and Rev. Henry Lebeck, rector of St. Timothy's church. The service was private, only the members of Mrs. Davis' family, representatives of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and a small number of intimate friends being present. Numerous wreaths covered the casket, one of which was sent by President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Other floral tributes came from the Governors of many southern states and from various societies of which Mrs. Davis was a member.

NINE CANDIDATES KNOCKED OUT BY OKLAHOMA BOARD

Guthrie, Ok. Oct. 19—The territorial election board yesterday knocked out eight independent and one socialist candidate for delegate to the constitutional convention on grounds that their petitions in some form or other were not in accordance with law.

The most prominent candidate thus eliminated was Will' n D. Fossett of Guthrie ex-United States Marshal who was running as an independent republican candidate in this the 25th district. The full list involved is as follows:

Tenth district John C. Peters independent republican; Twenty-second, Dr. John D. Bilby, independent; Twenty-fourth, William Mahan, prohibitionist; Twenty-fifth, Rev. J. E. Disch, Prohibitionist; Twenty-sixth, Rev. Ira Holbrook, prohibitionist; Twenty-seven Rev. A. L. Vidden, prohibitionist; and B. B. Baine socialist; Twenty-eighth, Rev. E. O. Whitewall, prohibitionist; Twenty-ninth, Robert Chowing, prohibitionist.

Fossett was knocked out because the residence of his petitioners was not given and Baine because his petition was not filed in time. All the others were refused because the proper residence of the candidates or petitioners were not given.

Henry Treadway, an independent negro candidate in Oklahoma City, and John Shields of Beaver both succeeded in getting on the ballot.

The sentiment here is that the hair-splitting rule has been adopted for the special purpose of preventing Henry Asp's defeat in the race for constitutional delegate.

Judge W. B. Herod, representing

DEMOCRATIC ORATORY
FLOWS IN THE OPEN AIR

The democrats held their rally at last Thursday night. And it was a good one, one calculated to make the opposition green with envy.

The meeting was held in the open air right out on Main street and Judge Henry M. Furman was the speaker for the occasion. It began with a big bonfire and some superb music by the Ada Merchants Band.

Judge Furman mounted a wagon prepared for the occasion and for over an hour headed the big crowd big bundles of hard facts—facts indisputable, facts of vital interest to voters of the 87th district, facts every one needs to know.

Judge Furman is always candid with his audience. He has a horror of deception. He sketched in vivid black lines the record of republican administrations in handling territory affairs; he laid bare the unpardonable sins both of commission and omission committed by the dominant party in this country for years.

It was shown how inextricably is the republican party bound to the hosts of graft and corporate influences. To illustrate, the speaker referred to the notorious back-down of President Roosevelt on the railroad rate bill—Roosevelt the boasted courageous reformer. When Roosevelt has to surrender to pressure of corporate interests—the dominant influence of his party—how, asked Mr. Furman, could one expect the republican nominee for delegate in this district to withstand those same influence with all their power, with all their wiles?

The protective tariff came in for some severe ridicule. Wherever there appeared the least semblance of prosperity, said the speaker, the republican party claims the credit for it, boasting itself superior to the law of supply and demand. The plight of the farmer was graphically portrayed: "You sell your cotton in an open market, against the world, and have to buy your supplies in a high protected market." "But the farmers are getting wise" said the judge, "they are learning that Teddy doesn't do it all, that the law of supply and demand is a factor, and they propose to regulate that supply to some extent."

Space forbids the reproduction of many strong and unanswerable paragraphs of the speaker. The issue squarely up to the people is, said he, "shall our constitution be written by God-made men or by man-made corporations?" He told his hearers that the democracy of this district—not in a little convention, but in a big, free-for-all primary election, had chosen its candidate, had chosen a good one, a man who could be depended upon to stand by the people. He urged all advocates of good government to stand by the nominee, to organize and to get informed on the intricacies of the election laws.

Judge Furman's address was enthusiastically received, was copiously punctuated with applause and the meeting altogether was a notable success.

COTTON SEED TO TEXAS.

Oklahoma Will Ship Clean Seed to Boll Weevil Districts.

Guthrie, Ok., Oct. 19.—At a meeting here of the independent cotton ginnery of the Territory it became known that a considerable amount of cotton seed turned out in Oklahoma this season will be shipped to Texas and other boll weevil infected areas for next spring's planting. Secretary Millard reports many letters received from Texas planters, in particular, asking if they can get seed from this Territory.

The only other important matter considered by the ginnery was the scarcity of cars at the present time for shipping the cotton crop from Eastern Oklahoma. Fifteen cars of cotton are awaiting shipment at Goodnight and between 400 and 600 bales at Pawnee, Coyle and Perkins. It was estimated by the ginnery this, (Logan) county will turn out 20,000 bales this year.

Pure Food Law Effects Grocers.

Whatever benefits are to accrue from the passing of the pure food bill in the last congress will soon become apparent, even in the new state of Oklahoma. Already the changed condition as affecting the labeling of manufactured products is coming to the notice of local wholesale grocers. They are now working off their old stock and making room for the new stocks, complying with the provisions of the pure food law, bearing labels that do not belie the contents of the packages.

The new law will not apply to goods that are within the state boundaries in which they are to be retailed, if they are delivered before January 1. For the shipments out of the state after that date, however, much preparation has been made. Already some of the new labels are in the ware houses here. One spice firm has notified its customers here that after January 1, it will have to brand its pepper "Pepper and Pure Cereals." That is a confession of adulteration, ordinary corn flour intermingled into the blend of pepper. Corn flour costs about one-twentieth as much as real pepper. The baking powder labels would make glad the heart of any health society, for most of them have the fatal word "alum" on them.

Pati de foie gras is liver cheese, and liver cheese that was will be known hereafter as "Liver Cheese with beef and pork," indicating that the can contains several things besides liver and cheese.

No longer there will be seen such a thing as pure "sorghum" on the grocers shelves. Pure sorghum cannot be put up. It either turns sour or crystallizes and becomes sugar. Despite its "pure sorghum" labels, the pure sorghum has been adulterated by corn syrup, and the new labels which are here read on the cans that formerly read "pure sorghum." This is 20 per cent pure sorghum and 80 per cent corn syrup.

Packet coffees come out of the ordeal in excellent shape, their new labels have nothing to confess. The ground coffee will tell about "pure cereals" like the pepper labels.

Several years ago beans were made of peanut flour, roasted to resemble coffee beans. The scheme did no work for the adulterant cost more than the real coffee, so there no longer is adulteration in the packet coffee.

Brewers Ready For Fight

South McAlester, I. T. Oct. 19—A representative of a St. Louis brewery who was in the city last night says that one of the coming towns of the new state is Earlsboro on the Choctaw division of the Rock Island.

He declares that the brewers are going to fight the anti-Oklahoma side report of whiskey into what is now Indian territory and that they are going to win the fight.

Earlsboro is naturally the newest depot of supply to the Indian country, being but a few miles from the territorial line. The breweries claim that to be constitutional, the enabling act should have prohibited the importation into the Indian territory from all points and should not have discriminated against Oklahoma.

The candidacy of Henry Asp, Santa Fe lobbyist and Republican nominee from the 25th constitutional district, has not only called forth the knife of public opinion in that district, but has as well ruined the chances of other Republican-corporation candidates. The keen edge of public opinion will cut short the entrance of corporation delegates to the convention.

Letter to Mr. J. B. Bramley, Ada, I. T.

Dear Sir: The gallons saved is $12 to $15 earned.

Mr. Hanford Platt of Bridgeport, Conn., ordered 15 gallons Devoe to paint his house, and returned 3 gallons. His painter said it would take 15; a lead-and-oil painter.

Hubbell & Wade Co sold it. They say everybody has the same experience there.

The reason is, of course: they are used to poor paint.

What is poor paint? Anything not Devoe: some worse than others.

Besides, paints wear about as they cover. Double the $12 to $15.

Yours truly

"SAVED by a GIRL"

Once Again the Summer Girl Has Proved Herself a Real Heroine with a Remarkable List of Successful Deeds of Courageous Rescue.

Which is the braver—man or woman?

This is a question that nobody can answer, for the simple reason that it is impossible to tell to what degree of heroism either will go when occasion demands. A little girl of five, who under ordinary conditions would scream at the sight of a tiny flame, will dash through a conflagration to save the life of a baby brother who has fallen into the blaze.

A young woman daintily clad and afraid in her normal mood to go into the water without holding to the life-line, will, forgetting self entirely, plunge into the stormy flood to rescue a drowning person as quickly as the trained life-saver.

Compared individually with members of the opposite sex, women today stand forth ahead, says the New York World. For instance, the summer girl and the summer man, clasped together in ordinary affairs, are far apart when it comes to matters of heroism. It is the summer girl who shows "the real stuff" when it comes to a pinch.

All summer long there have been young women who have performed deeds of splendid daring. Many of them have not been reported in public print.

This attribute of bravery on the part of our women is not new. This summer's exhibitions of it are only new. And it is only meet that the story of some of them should be told again.

When young Earl Buckley fell from the pier into the sea at Island Heights, N. J., only Mrs. V. Floyd Campbell heard his cry. She screamed for help. Then, as she saw the lad rise and sink out of sight again, she plunged into the water. She was fully clothed and swam with difficulty. There was still enough life in the boy when she reached him and enough of desperate terror to make him very dangerous. He grabbed Mrs. Campbell, and with arms around her neck and legs twined about her body, clung with a death-grip.

Frantic Struggle for Life.

Then came a frantic struggle for life. She struck the boy in the face and tried to choke him. His weight and her heavy clothing bore them far under the surface. When they rose again she put forth all her strength to drag their weight nearer the shore, where the shallows would give her a foothold. Her efforts were successful and thus she brought the boy to land, and together they fell on the beach, exhausted.

At Lake Hopatcong Miss Edna Hartman saved the lives of four drowning persons on as many occasions. Miss Hartman is only 18 years old, very pretty and a splendid swimmer. Another heroine of Lake Hopatcong is Miss Effie Field, of Rutherford, N. J., who plunged into the water in her Sunday finery and rescued Walter Hutchinson, a 12-year-old boy, in the nick of time.

Mrs. Frederick G. Ware has just added another rescue to the 14 she has made in the nine years that she has lived near the canal at Ansonia, Conn. She has saved six boys, four girls, three women and two men from drowning. Her latest rescue, and one of the most difficult, was that of Mrs. Charles Cahill, who fell into the canal where the water is 12 feet deep. Mrs. Ware leaped in after her, fully dressed, and after a hard struggle in the presence of several men, who were too frightened to give aid, brought the unconscious woman to shore.

Saved Two from Death.

Then there was the brave rescue by Mrs. Frederick E. Crane, of Brooklyn." Her calls brought aid, and the burglar was arrested.

But the interest always comes back most strongly to the woman who rushes voluntarily into danger to save the lives of others. Near Cedar Grove, N. J., a horse attached to a light runabout became frightened at a passing auto and dashed at high speed along the turnpike. In the carriage were two girls, and in her fright the one who was driving dropped the reins. The horse was on a dead run when it approached a field in which Miss Pauline Weiss was picking daisies. The two girls were clinging to each other and crying out in terror. Miss Weiss dropped her apron, half filled with flowers, vaulted over the four-rail fence and ran to the middle of the road. She seized the bridle of the horse as it got abreast of her, and held on, swaying back and forth and sawing on the bit, for more than a hundred yards.

Quite similar to this was the daring act of Mrs. George Corwin, of Stamford. She seized the bit of a frantic horse dashing toward a crowd in the main street of Bridgeport, and by her courage and presence of mind undoubtedly saved the lives or limbs of more than one person.

Miss Annie Barner hesitated not a moment to risk a horrible death under the wheels of a Pennsylvania railway train at Elizabeth, N. J., to save the life of two-year-old Edward Cope land, who had wandered to the track. The speeding locomotive was almost on him when Miss Barner climbed up the steep embankment, seized the child and drew him out of danger.

Fought with Mad Dog.

The terror that a mad dog inspires in the mind of a young woman did not cause Miss Anna Winters, 17 years old, to hesitate when the moment scarcely injured, while the little heroine was severely burned about the face and chest.

Another "little mother" of five years, Hannah Lavin, of No. 774 East One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, was left alone to care for her two baby brothers while the real mother went to market. When Mrs. Lavin returned there were fire engines and an excited crowd in front of the house and smoke was pouring from the windows of her flat. She swooned in attempting to make her way through the halls, suffocating with smoke, to the third floor, where she had left her children. But meanwhile little Hannah had worked her way out of the burning flat, little three-year-old Joe clinging to her skirts and the one-year-old baby in her arms, covered with an old shawl to shut out the sight and suffocating smell of the smoke. Willing hands were ready at the last flight of stairs to help the little heroine and her charges.

VOTE-BUYING IN ENGLAND.

Bribery Rampant at the Close of the Eighteenth Century.

Votes have been purchased shamelessly and on a huge scale in British elections. An arrangement was once made in the borough of Wendover by which two candidates were to be elected after a distribution of £6,000 ($30,000) among the voters. The account reads: "This being settled a gentleman was employed to go down, when he was met according to previous appointment by the electors about a mile from the town. The electors asked the stranger where he came from. He replied, 'From the moon.' They then asked, 'What news from the moon?' He answered that he had brought from hence £6,000 to be distributed among them. The electors, being thus satisfied with the golden news from the moon, chose the candidates and received their reward."

At Hindon a man dressed fantastically as the dancing Punch called at the house of the voters and left behind him sums of five to ten guineas ($25 to $50). Another device was to collect the citizens at the inns and hand them their reward through a hole in the door. For these offenses the house of commons passed a resolution that Hindon should be disfranchised, but so lax were the morals of the time—the close of the eighteenth century—that the resolution was never acted upon.

Again in 1859 the "Man in the Moon" turned up in Wakefield. He went about openly distributing money and did not appear to be in the least ashamed of his occupation. At Dublin, in 1868, a hole in the wall served the purpose of a distributing center for the £6 ($25) notes, while at Shaftesbury an alderman paid through a hole in the door of his office a sum of 20 guineas ($100) to each elector.

WRESTLING IN SCOTLAND.

Athletic Sport on the Famous Field at Grasmere.

The sports field at Grasmere lies at the foot of a characteristic ridge of fells, very narrow at the top and as steep nearly as the side of a house. As you sit in the grandstand this ridge rises up in front of you.

On the bare, precipitous slopes of it the guides' race is run. On the verdant lawn on which the grandstand is placed the wrestling matches are held and those spectators who are not in the stand make a ring around the lawn. There are coaches and carriages, too, all around, on which people sit and watch and have picnic luncheons, and it all looks rather like Lord's cricket ground reduced in size.

In Cumberland wrestling the fall is won directly a man is thrown to the ground. There is no need to pin the shoulders down as in Greco-Roman wrestling. Here at Grasmere all is ended just when the Greco-Roman catch-as-catch-caners would be getting to the serious work. Were it not so the Grasmere sports would last all the year round. As it was, several matches went on at the same time.

Many of the men had their tights embroidered with wonderful flowers or designs in silk or wool—the work of their women folk, who were now straining to get a glimpse of how the charm worked from the swaying ranks of the people around the ground.

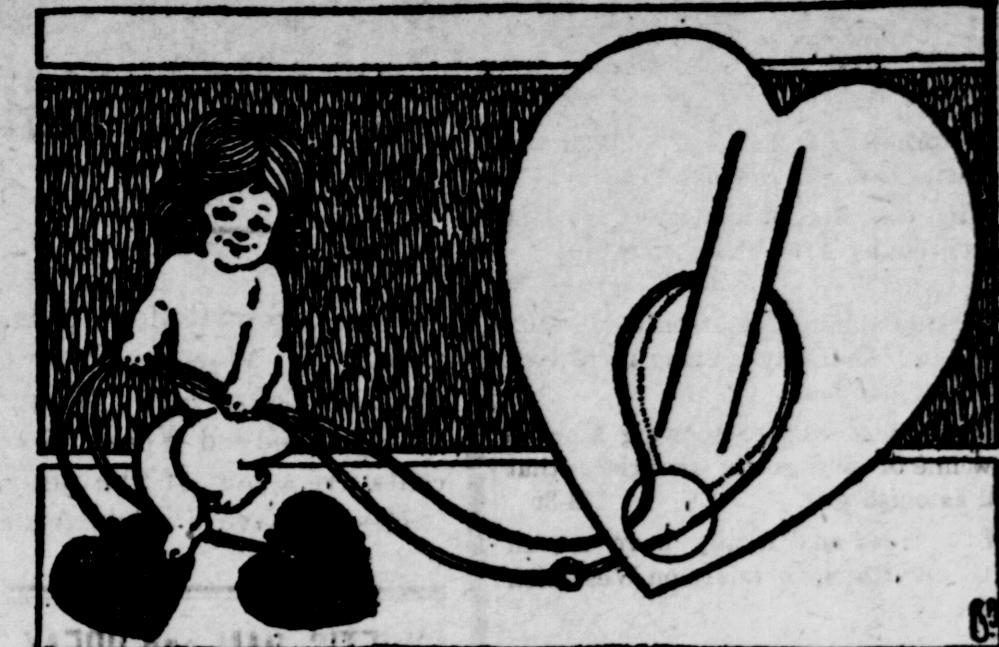

Boys wrestled; men with white hair, who had gained in experience what they had lost in elasticity, wrestled. The boys seemed to be young Orlandos temeritously trying a fall with the Charleses of the profession, and who knew that there was not some Rosalind who saw it all dimly from the crowd and was ready to say afterward, "Sir, you have wrestled well and overcome more than your enemies."—London Standard.

Dragged Sister from Flames.

And think of Rena Etson, five years old, who walked into a fire in the street near her home at Battle Creek, Mich., and dragged her three-year-old sister from the flames. The brave deed was done with a cool deliberation not often found in older persons on similar occasions. She did not call out when she saw the danger to her little sister, "because she was afraid she would scare her to go further into the fire." The baby was scarcely injured, while the little heroine was severely burned about the face and chest.

CUPID'S PUZZLE.

To make this very amusing puzzle, cut the big heart out of heavy pliable paper and use stiff cardboard for the smaller ones. Cut two strips and a circle into the big heart, as shown in the picture, pass a string through, as shown also, and tie the ends of the string to the smaller hearts.

Now, explains the Boston Globe,

LAWN BILLIARDS.

It's the Same as Croquet, the Players Say, But Different.

Be very careful to say "lawn billiards," when speaking of the game which has taken the place of croquet. Those who play it are sensitive about the name. In the new game which is becoming popular in some places there are "slit" shots, "slice" shots, "hiding" balls, "thin slice" shots, "split" shots, getting "position," and a number of other technical terms which the old time croquet players know little about.

"Lawn billiards" is really as different from croquet, in many respects, feet from the first, on a line extending through the middle of the field.

The side wickets are 6 feet and 3 inches from the border on a line with the second wicket from each stake. There is a cage or double wicket in the center 18 inches long and 3 1/2 inches between the wires, set at right angles with a line drawn from stake to stake. The other eight arches are to be 3 1/2 inches between the wires. The wickets should be set in blocks of wood buried in the ground. The borders should be of hard wood, that will not warp, laid flat to serve as a cushion for carom shots. This timber or border should be beveled half an inch, making it measure 6 inches wide on top, 5 1/2 inches wide as the game of billiards is different from croquet. The only likeness to the time honored and antiquated game is that mallets and wickets are used. The mallets have short handles and the wickets and balls are small. Think about having to shoot a ball through a wicket with only a space of about three inches between the wires! You could not drive one of the old time croquet balls through such a wicket with a sledge hammer, because the old balls were large and the wickets were wide between the wires.

The dimensions of the grounds used, says the Kansas City Star, are 72 feet in length; 36 feet wide; corner pieces 8 feet long. These are inside measurements with a line denoting the boundary of the field 30 inches from the inside of the border. The stakes are 1 inch in diameter and 1 1/2 inches high, situated outside of the denoting line at the center of the width of the field. The first wicket is 7 feet from the stake; the second 7 on the bottom, and 4 inches high. This will prevent balls jumping off the ground when the border is used as a cushion for carom shots. The boundary lines, which are drawn 30 inches from the borders, simply mark the place for the positions of the balls for beginning plays and obtaining uniform distances for the inside field.

To begin a game of lawn billiards the balls are placed in the four corners of the ground. Partners' balls should lie diagonally opposite each other, the playing ball and the next in sequence to be placed at the head of the grounds. Then the object is to get the balls through the wickets much as in the game of croquet.

At Ninth street and Taumee avenue, West side, preparations have been made to play the game. The ground is level, underlaid with cinders, with a layer of sand, which is sprinkled and rolled with a heavy iron roller before each game. The surface is hard and smooth.

Overcoming Difficulties.

Mark Guy Pearce points out the good to be derived from overcoming difficulties, when he says: "Brave men of old believed that the strength of the vanquished became the added strength of the victor, and thus he went from conquering to conquer. It is true to the full of every conflict of the soul. By conflicts our God develops us; teaching us thus of ourselves, of our needs and our weakness; teaching us, too, of himself, of his watchfulness and might. And thus he fits us for victories, as these are the material of which heaven's songs are made."

Alarmed.

"My!" exclaimed the giraffe in the menagerie tent, "is this horseless business going to strike us next?"

"What's the matter?" inquired the neighborly lion.

"That matinee girl just passed by with that bum actor, and I'm sure I heard her say she wished he'd give his autograph."—Philadelphia Press.

"O, Butterfly, how do you, pray. Your wings so prettily array? Where do you find the paints from which to mix your colors warm and rich?"

The butterfly, in answer, said: "The roses lend me pink and red. The violets their deepest blue. And every flower its chosen hue."

"My palette is a rose-leaf fair. My brush is formed of maiden-hair. My dew-drops shining in the grass. Serve nicely for my looking-glass."—Nixon Waterman, in Ram's Horn.

No Use.

"Do you notice what a lot of women are going in for science?"

"Yes, my wife's got the fever, too."

"Mechanics. She's an inventor."

"Indeed! What has she invented?"

"Why, she's just perfected a stair step that makes me register the time I get home in the morning as soon as I put my foot on it."

"Can't you beat it some way?"

"It's no use. She's always awake, anyway, and waiting for me on the upper landing."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
